

The Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton University and the Brookings Institution are pleased to announce the release of the newest volume of their jointly published journal, The Future of Children, "Opportunity in America" (Vol. 16, No. 2). The nine articles in this issue focus on the extent to which children's chances of success depend on the circumstances into which they are born.

Please take a few minutes to read the Executive Summary.

This issue is accompanied by a policy brief, "Opportunity in America: The Role of Education," authored by Isabel Sawhill, senior editor and co-director of the Center on Children and Families at the Brookings Institution.

This mailing provides subscribers with periodic updates on the journal's new releases and activities. We hope you find this information useful in your work to improve the lives of low-income children and families.

If your colleagues would also like to receive this e-mail, please pass this along and ask them to subscribe to our newsletter.

The Future of Children: A Publication of The Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University and The Brookings Institution.