

Report: Marriage Can Help Finances

September 14, 2005 - The Houston Chronicle - AROUND THE NATION

WASHINGTON - Stable marriage can increase the financial prosperity of couples and improves the lives of American children, including those being raised by same-sex couples, according to a report released Tuesday. The report by the Brookings Institution and Princeton University showed that while the poor see lack of money as a barrier to marriage, even when they have children out of wedlock, marriage actually ensures them healthier finances in the future.
